The Adventures of Allan the Adventurous Bike

Once upon a time there was a little bicycle named Allan who wanted to fly by the moon. And one day, Allan came upon a poster that said, “If not now, when?” So he thought maybe he should try it.

Allan tried many times to fly, but failed. So, he took on an adventure. The first place Allan rode to was the tropical woods in Brazil. Brazilian rain forests were hard to go through for Allan. But through the forest Allan discovered many animals he had never seen before, and also befriended a few of the animals. One of his friends was a toucan named Zazu. Allan met Zazu when he first entered the forest. After that, they encountered some trouble with a cheetah. The cheetah later became their friend. They found out that the cheetah’s name was Spot.

After they got out of the Brazilian rain forest, they prepared a 7,836 mile trip to the North Pole. They biked over the land and over the clouds. Spot the cheetah started to worry about how cold it would be in the North Pole. So, Spot fashioned a coat out of scraps of fabric that he found along the way.

Finally, they reached the North Pole and went to Santa’s workshop. And they meet Santa. Santa realized how far they had traveled to get there, so he granted a gift to each one of them. Zazu asked for a miniature elephant and that is exactly what he got. Spot wanted to be reunited with her mother after the adventure was over, and Santa promised that they would be. Allan asked to be a white Harley Davidson motorcycle with orange streaks on both sides. After his request the elves start to work on him. An hour went by and Allan was finally a motorcycle.

They all asked for one big wish together. They asked to go to the moon. And Santa said, "OF COURSE!" The next day, everybody got on the red & green rocket and took off to the moon! After a few hours they landed on the moon and stumbled across the yellow brick road. They followed the road and found the Wizard of Oz. The Wizard asked if he could grant them a wish, and they said that they wish to return home. Two days later they all returned back to the jungle!
